

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A communication apparatus comprises an authentication code storage section, an authentication section configured to perform authentication of another communication apparatus using an authentication code stored in the authentication code storage section, and an authentication code updating section configured to calculate a new authentication code and update the authentication code stored in the authentication code storage section with the new authentication code when the authentication performed by the authentication section is successful.

5

10

10025771-122601